Quick Log — How It Works

For: anyone logging activities with prospects in OwnEZ CRM Skim time: 2 minutes · Worked examples: below

What changed

Two upgrades. The fast path is unchanged — you only see the new stuff when it's useful.

- Close-out on old Next Actions. When you log an activity and you had a follow-up already due, a small prompt asks whether that old follow-up is Done, Still pending, or should be Replaced. No more silent drift.
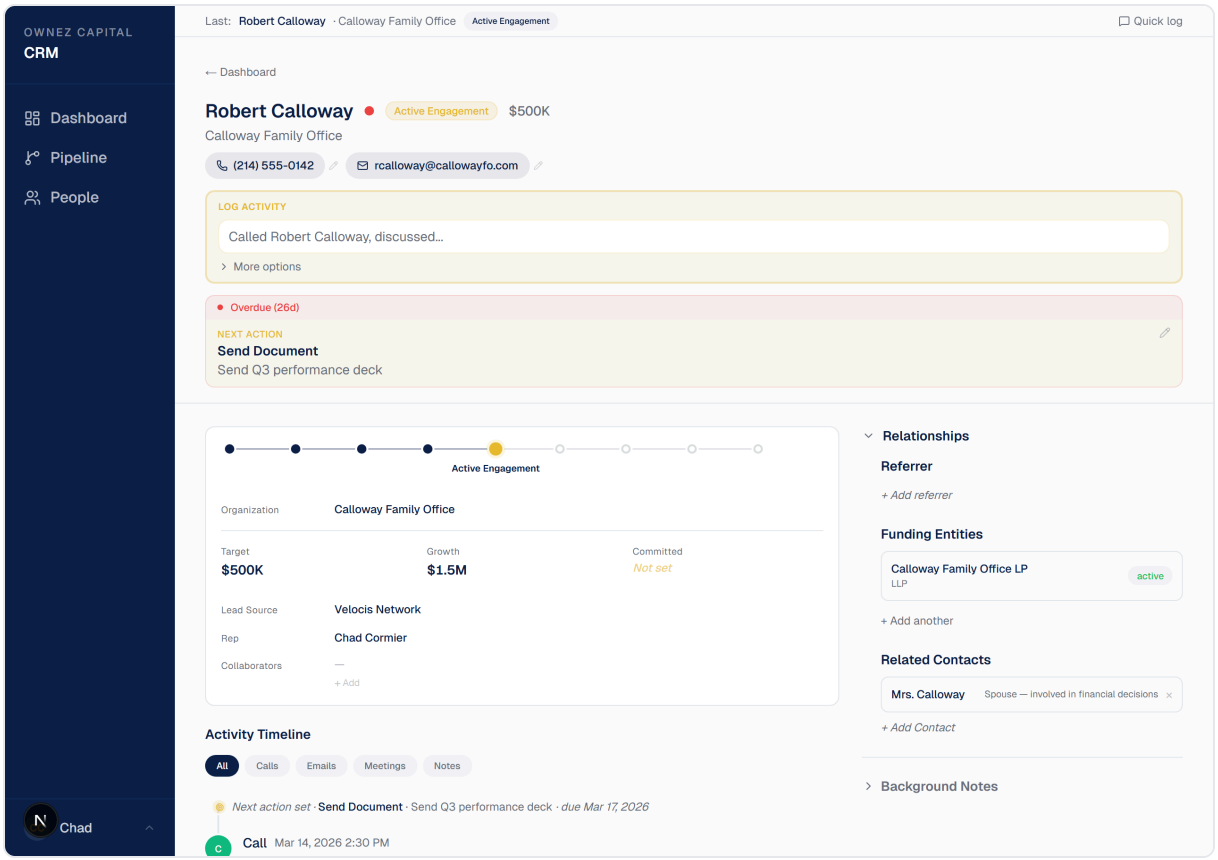
- Drop lead from Quick Log. Mark a prospect Dead or Nurture without leaving the flow.

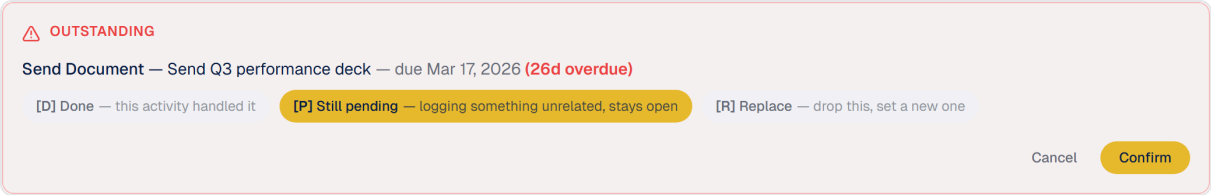
The normal flow (most logs)

Type → Enter → set a Next Action → Enter. Done. Same as before.



When you had a follow-up already due

You log an activity on a prospect who has an open Next Action whose date has passed. Before you move on, you get this:



Pick one:

	When to pick it	What happens
[D] Done	The activity you just logged is the follow-up. "Emailed Q3 deck with annotations."	Old follow-up gets marked done and linked to the activity. Prospect clears off the overdue list. Next Action prompt appears for the next step.
[P] Still pending	You logged something unrelated. "CPA called — Robert traveling this week."	Note gets saved. Old follow-up stays open. Prospect stays on the overdue list — because the deck still needs sending. No surprises later.
[R] Replace	The plan changed. "Robert pushed the Q3 conversation to after his travel."	Old follow-up is retired. Next Action prompt appears with an empty date — pick a new one.

Keyboard: `D`, `P`, `R`, or `Enter` to confirm.

When this prompt doesn't appear

- First contact with a fresh prospect
- Your current Next Action is still in the future
- Someone already closed out the follow-up on a previous activity

Dropping a lead — Dead or Nurture

When the right move is not another follow-up, use the Drop lead ▸ link inside the Next Action prompt.

1. Log the activity ("Called — not accredited right now.")
2. Pick Done / Still pending / Replace to clear the close-out
3. Click Drop lead ▸
4. Pick [D] Dead (pick a reason) or [N] Nurture (pick a re-engage date)
5. Confirm

The prospect leaves your active pipeline. Every call, note, and relationship stays on the record — you can restore them later from their detail page with full history intact.

What the timeline shows

Next Actions you set appear as inline `◉` markers alongside your activities. When an activity handles a follow-up, a green `✓ Done` line appears under it linking back to the marker.

Status badges on the markers:

- `✓ done (Nd late)` — a later activity handled it
- `↺ replaced` — you changed the plan
- `✕ cancelled` — the lead was dropped
- no badge — still open

Cheat sheet

Situation	Do this
Nothing outstanding, just logging	Type → Enter → set Next Action → Enter
Old follow-up; this activity handled it	[D] Done → set Next Action → Enter
Old follow-up; logging something else	[P] Still pending — you're done
Old follow-up; plan changed	[R] Replace → pick new date → Enter
Prospect says they're out	Next Action prompt → Drop lead ▸ → Dead + reason
Parking for later	Next Action prompt → Drop lead ▸ → Nurture + re-engage date

FAQ

Will this slow me down? Only when you actually had something outstanding. If nothing's overdue, you don't see the prompt — you go straight to Next Action like before.

I picked Still pending but it really did handle the follow-up. Open the prospect's page and mark the open Next Action done from there. One click.

How do I bring back a dropped lead? Open their detail page (search People, filter Dead/Nurture) and move them back via the stage bar. All history is preserved.

How does the overdue list decide? It shows prospects with an open Next Action whose date has passed. Logging an activity doesn't by itself clear the flag — you clear it by picking Done or Replace (or by dropping the lead). This is the point: the list stays honest.

More than one open follow-up on the same prospect? Uncommon, but the prompt lists them all at once — pick Done / Still pending / Replace for each, then hit Confirm.
